Our CKI Members Continue To Do Us Proud On the Road

In late February, 10 W&M CKI club members trucked up to the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Arlington near Ronald Reagan Airport for their 51st District Convention. (Are there any guys in CKI??)

Yes, but not on this trip. It was a great convention, the members learned much from the workshops, had fun and bonded with many others from other clubs. In the photo, they are attending a caucus for district officer elections.

Many top place awards were taken: Scrapbook, website, newsletter and, most important, the Club Achievement Award. Three out of four members in the district had at least 150 service hours in one year. A lot of enthusiasm and spirit is brought home from the convention and trickles down to the membership. They were good stewards of the funds we provide for them to be able to attend. It was a very successful convention for one of the best clubs in the Capital District!

Kiwanis International is a global organization of members of every age who are dedicated to changing the world, one child and one community at a time.

Today's Speaker: Jamie Radtke

Jamie Radtke has established a record of being a principled conservative and consensus builder with a passion for fighting to maintain the Founders' vision for our country.

As someone who grew up in a military family, Jamie's love for and dedication to America were instilled at a very young age. Her dad was an F-4 fighter pilot in the Air Force. Jamie's dad served at a NATO/ATOC base in Kalkar, West Germany, where she experienced up close and personal the realities of the Cold War. As her dad participated in war games—often disappearing for days at a time in a bunker—Jamie learned the fears an unstable world creates, and the importance of facing those fears as an individual, a family, and a nation.

In 1995, Jamie graduated from Liberty University with a B.S. in government. Her first exposure to politics came that same year when she worked for the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, chaired by Senator Jesse Helms. She earned her masters in public policy from The College of William and Mary in 1998. After graduate school she spent two years at American Management Systems consulting to the Virginia Department of Taxation to help make their daily operations more efficient and cost effective.

In 2004, Jamie went to work for Virginia Conservative Action PAC as Political and Grassroots Director, where she focused on challenging Republicans who had strayed from conservative principles. In 2009, Jamie was swept up in the spontaneous grassroots movement reshaping the entire political landscape in America: the Tea Party. She became the President of Richmond Tea Party and chair of the Federation of Virginia Tea Party Patriots, which was recently described as "the most advanced of any in the country" by the Wall Street Journal, in large part due to Jamie's leadership.

Jamie and her husband, John, married in 1999 and now have three children—Abigail (age 8), Sarah (age 7), and Luke (age 4)—all of whom Jamie homeschools. Believing deeply in the importance of the family unit, she is a dedicated wife and mother, working hard to teach her children those same values she received from her parents that empowered her to enjoy a successful professional and personal life.

Jamie also enjoys family vacations, skiing, fishing, and reading. Jamie and her family attend Parkway Baptist Church.
